- Malya : "Thank you, everyone! We are super excited to share the summary from Breakout Room 1, where we discussed Student Organizations & Leadership."
 - Russell : "That's right, Malya! We had a truly eye-opening exchange with our friends from the University of the Philippines. What really stood out to us first was their powerful motto: 'Iskolar Ng Bayan, Para Sa Bayan'—Scholar of the Masses, For the Masses."
 - Malya : "Exactly. From that, we realized both of our universities share a massive dedication to Real-World Immersion. Whether it's UP's corporate internships and community teaching, or SU's real-life academic projects, we both strongly believe in giving back to the community."
 - Russell : "But honestly, the most heartwarming part of our session was during the Q&A! We talked about how we survive the organizational pressure and keep our teams bonded."
 - Malya : "Yes! We learned that UP has this beautiful tradition of bonding with their supervisors by going out and trying local street food together. Meanwhile, at Satu University, we keep our bonds strong through fun routines, like playing board games every week."
 - Russell : "It was such a great realization. Whether it's over a plate of delicious street food or a fun board game, informal human connection is definitely our secret weapon to solving organizational problems."
- Malya : "So true. Because of that, Group 1 has identified Two Concrete Action Points for our future collaboration. First: A Joint 'World Cafe' Leadership Bootcamp!"
 - Russell : "UP excels in interactive, debate-style learning like the 'World Cafe'. Meanwhile, SU has a strong foundation in digital campaign strategies. So, we propose hosting a joint online workshop where we can exchange these exact skills!"
 - Malya : "Second: A Media & Content Management Sharing Session! Since SU is currently tackling 'Social Media Burnout' among our student leaders, and UP has a very established Media & Journalism culture like The Manila Collegian, we'd love to collaborate on a digital sharing session to learn how to sustainably manage campus media."
 - Russell : "We are super excited to make these happen! And who knows? Maybe during that next online collaboration, we can all play a virtual board game together..."
 - Malya : "...while eating our favorite local street foods! Thank you so much, everyone. The future is definitely bright for SU and UP!"

- Malya: "But wait, the excitement doesn't stop there! Let's move on to the insights from Breakout Room 2, which focused on Campus Facilities & Student Support Services."
- Russell: "Yes! Group 2 had a fascinating discussion about how our campuses take care of us. What absolutely blew our minds was UP's holistic approach to student wellness. They don't just have great medical and mental health services, but they even have meditation sessions and pet or animal interaction programs! How cool is that?"

- Malya: "Right?! We definitely need some fluffy pets on campus to help us destress during exam weeks! On the other hand, Satu University shared our focus on interactive tech-facilities, like our Creative Classrooms and labs."
- Russell: "Exactly. So, for Group 2, our Proposed Action Point is a 'Student Wellness & Tech Exchange'. We would love to learn how UP successfully integrates mental health and wellness programs—like those pet interactions—into campus life, while SU can share how we utilize digital platforms and tech-facilities to support student learning."

[Transisi ke Group 3]

- Malya: "Now, last but definitely not least, let's talk about Breakout Room 3, which covered Cultural Integration & Campus Life. This room got very real about the daily life of a university student."
- Russell: "Haha, very real! We learned that for UP students, daily survival means having a train card, earphones for studying, a water bottle, and... motion sickness medicine for the commute! We completely relate to that commuter struggle."
- Malya: "We also found a great learning opportunity here. UP already has a diverse international student community. Meanwhile, Satu University currently focuses heavily on adapting new students through our Orientation program, and preparing them for the industry through our 1-year Internship and Entrepreneurship incubation."
- Russell: "Not to mention, SU is also aggressively adapting to future tech by integrating AI learning and workshops into our student activities."
- Malya: "Because of this, Group 3's Proposed Action Point is a 'Cross-Cultural & Career Readiness Sharing'. Since SU is planning to welcome international students next year, we want to benchmark UP's strategies on cultural integration."
- Russell: "And in return, SU is more than happy to share our blueprint on how we run our Entrepreneurship support programs and AI-adaptation workshops for students."

[Unified Closing / Penutup Semua Grup]

- Malya: "So, to wrap everything up: from World Cafe leadership bootcamps, media sharing sessions, wellness programs, to AI and cultural integration..."
- Russell: "...it is very clear that Satu University and the University of the Philippines have so much to offer each other. We are not just sharing ideas today; we are building a foundation for real, impactful collaborations."
- Malya: "Thank you to everyone in Group 1, 2, and 3 for the amazing discussions. The future is definitely bright for SU and UP!"
- Russell: "Thank you so much, everyone! I will now hand the floor back to our main agenda."
